

Héma-Québec wants to reach the families of patients with rare blood because blood is inherited. This is what is called a family study.

From the moment you learn that you have rare blood, you have everything at hand to help us identify members of your family who are potential blood donors.

If you have rare blood, other members of your family may also have the same type of blood. And they too can help enrich the bank of rare blood donors.

By taking part in the family study, you and your family members could help increase Héma-Québec's supply of rare blood and meet transfusion needs and, who knows, even save your life or that of a loved one.

By signing this consent form, you are authorizing Héma-Québec to contact you to discuss the rare blood program and family study.

Required information

Hospital: _____

Physician's name: _____

Patient's last name: _____ Patient's first name: _____

- I received the document explaining the rare blood program, which my doctor gave me.
- I accept to have Héma-Québec contact me to discuss the rare blood program and family study.

Email address: _____

Phone no.: _____

Signature: _____ Date : _____

Send this consent form to Héma-Québec by:

Email: rareblood@hema-quebec.qc.ca

Fax: 514 527-7900