HÉMA-QUÉBEC

Increasing the number of collections in donor centres as opposed to blood drives is a key element of Héma-Québec’s supply strategy. To contribute to this effort, the GLOBULE donor centre in Lebourgneuf neighborhood has thirteen beds dedicated to whole blood donations and donations by apheresis.

COLLECTION BY APHERESIS

This type of donation is performed using a device that receives the donor’s blood, separates it into its various components, sends the one or more desired components to a donation bag and returns the components that have not been selected to the donor. In other words, this is a collection technique that consists in collecting blood components (red blood cells, platelets and plasma) in a selective manner.
